Waupaca's saloon license has been fixed at $300.

It may be possible that England will neither have to fight nor run, but one of the other course seems inevitable.

John Kelly's health is restored, but the thing that yet lacks restoration is the confidence of the administration in Kelly.

The Ohio legislature has enacted a law which provides that hereafter in that state all executions shall be private and shall take place within the walls of the penitentiary.

It begins to look as if the crime of polygamy and polygamous criminals must go. The supreme court of the United States has rendered a decision supporting the Edmunds bill.

Mr. Cleveland is credited with saying that he does not intend to remove Mr. Bruce, the register of the treasury, or Jas. Hill, the colored collector of internal revenue in Mississippi. Both are good republicans and splendid officials.

The late legislature provided for an enumeration of all soldiers and sailors now living in the state who served in the union army during the late war. It would be a good thing if Wisconsin should follow the example of Illinois in this matter and cause to be published in book form the name of all those who take part in suppressing the rebellion.

Watertown, in this state, will probably have a chance to hold up its head like other cities. Judges Gresham and Bunn, in the United States circuit court at Madison, rendered a decision in the railway bond cases of that city, holding that the claims of the bondholders were outlawed by the statute of limitation. The decision of the court caused great rejoicing at Watertown.

The editor of a Buffalo newspaper recently asked the subscribers to name the ten most important inventions of all time. More than 800 answers were received and the ten inventions receiving the most votes were: the telegraph, printing press, steam engine, cotton gin, telephone, mariner's compass, gunpowder, sewing machine, telescope and photography. Twenty-one votes were in favor of the steamboat, six for paper, two for time pieces, and only one for the ocean cable.

The administration is finding Mr. Williams (colored), United States minister to Haiti, an unpleasant man to deal with. He insists upon his rights with a persistence which will, doubtless, disturb the aristocratic meditations of the secretary of state. His letter to Mr. Cleveland, dated April 13, remaining unanswered, the minister has now written another to the president once more calling attention to the case and asking for his credentials or a statement of charges against him. In giving his own view of the situation Mr. Williams, doubtless, expresses the opinion of all fair-minded men in the nation who have no prejudice against their fellows on account of race or color.

James M. Morgan, who has been appointed consul general at Melbourne, Australia, has had a romantic career. The Washington dispatch says that during the war he was a midshipman on the rebel privateer Georgia, commanded by Captain Mearns. At the close of the war, he returned to South Carolina and married a very wealthy lady. On the death of his wife, he inherited $1,000,000 from her estate, but having means of his own at the time, he returned the entire amount to her relatives. In doing this he did for his wife's relation an act of honor which hardly has a parallel in the history of boquerists. Later, he lost his own fortune and went to Egypt, where he joined the army of the khedive. He spent several years in the Egyptian army, and for the greater part of the time was chief of staff to the khedive. He became such a favorite with Ismail Pasha that he was excited to the army of the native officers, who finally succeeded in having him ordered to command an expedition to the second sarakat, thinking that he would resign rather than go, but he accepted the command and accompanied "Chinese" Gordon, where he won distinction and was "valued" by the khedive for his services. But Morgan's two and master service. At his return to Egypt, he was captured by the army of one of the fair daughters of the bay of one of the high officials. "Win" riding with his fair flame one day, they were seen by the officer, who shot at them as they passed. To avoid bringing the woman's name into disrepute, Morgan resigned his commission and lustily fled for home. Last fall he devoted much time to writing for Blaine, and now the democratic administration gives him a good foreign appointment.

THE MAYOR AND SALOONS. Every fair-minded citizen in Janesville will lead the position taken by Mayor Winans regarding the enforcement of the law pertaining to the sale of intoxicating liquors. He appears to be in earnest in the matter, and we trust, in common with all good citizens, that no influence shall lead him to change his position or to become slack in the performance of his duty.

There are a good many excellent temperance provisions in the statute books. If all of them were strictly enforced as they should be, there would not be half the number of cases of drunkenness there are now. A very important step toward temperance reform would be taken were the liquor laws enforced as suggested by Mayor Winans. But they are not. They have not been strictly enforced in Janesville, and it is well known that in other cities there has been a lack of energy on the part of the authorities to properly punish violations of the statute law. This kind of work makes the saloon business all the more odious and the war against it all the stronger and these are natural results of the fear with many common councils to deal justly with the liquor interests.

These frequent violations come from the lower grade of saloons, kept by men who have no standing in the community, no business integrity and consequently have nothing to lose by their conduct. This not only works a great injustice upon those who strictly observe the law, but it is responsible for much of the drunkenness and saloon disturbances that bring shame and disgust upon cities. It is not so important as to what sum a saloon keeper shall pay for the privilege of selling liquor, but it is very important to know who shall receive the license. None but men who shall strictly observe the law should be permitted to sell under any circumstances, and if this policy were carried out as suggested in Mayor Winans' inaugural address, there would be inaugurated a very important reform.

THE STATE CENSUS. Secretary of State Timine is preparing for the state census which will be taken in June. The law regulating the taking of the census gives the secretary of state charge of the proceedings, and in addition to an enumeration of the inhabitants, distinguishing persons of either sex, age and dumb, blind, insane, idiotic, paupers, persons of color, nationality, occupation, etc., the secretary also prepares appropriate forms for collecting such statistics of agriculture, mining, manufacturing, education, etc., as he may deem useful and of general interest and for an enrollment of the militia.

The State Journal, speaking of the coming census says the task of collecting the foregoing statistics devolves upon the county clerks, who delegate the power to the town clerks of towns and the clerks of cities. The returns of the latter are tabulated by the county clerks and forwarded to the secretary of state at Madison. In large places, power is given the city clerk to divide the territory into enumeration districts, and to appoint as many enumerators as may be necessary to complete the census within the required time. The general government will pay the state for the taking of the new census, one-half as much as the last federal census of Wisconsin cost the government, providing that certain specified requirements are complied with, viz: That the census shall in all respects accord to the schedules and forms of enumeration in the census of the United States, and that there shall be deposited with the secretary of the interior by September 1st a full copy of all schedules. On the certificate of the secretary of the interior that such schedules have been so deposited, the secretary of the treasury will, on the request of the governor, pay to such state 50 per cent of the amount paid to all supervisors and enumerators in such state at the United States census next preceding, increased by one-half the percentage of gain in population in such state between the two United States censuses next preceding.

Mr. Secretary Timine, it seems has not yet decided what he shall do regarding the matter, as the federal census are vastly more complex than those which would ordinarily be employed by the state, hence the increased expense of using them would be very great. The Journal says that the secretary appreciates this fact and is inclined to believe that the state can better afford to act independently in regard to taking the census than to seek to gain any assistance from the government in the premises.

The Bosphore Egyptian Affair. New York, April 23.—A Mackay-Bennett cable says: Despite the ravages of the Journal des Débats and a few of the other Paris papers the controversy over the suppression of the Bosphore Egyptian is considered to be amicably settled. In settling the matter the Egyptian government only followed a precedent which was established in the case of the Levant Herald in Constantinople, of Johann Most's Freiheit in London, and in many other cases. It is a principle of common sense as well as of common law that a foreigner should not have any more right to make a nuisance of himself than the people of the country he is in, or than he would have if he were at home, and if France wanted a cause belli against England, which she does not, she would have to seek much farther than the Bosphore Egyptian.

Deadly Pistol Practice by a Woman. PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—William H. Krite, a colored waiter at a boarding house was shot and fatally wounded Wednesday evening on Arch street, by a colored woman named Annie Coulton, to whom he was formerly engaged to be married. The wounded man was taken to the Homeopathic hospital, where he died soon after being admitted. One shot took effect in his left cheek, the ball passing out back of his ear, and as he turned to run the second shot struck him in the back. The woman was arrested and says in explanation of the crime that Krite married another woman after having kept company with her for three years.

The Salt Men. WHEELING, W. Va., April 23.—There was a full representation of delegates at the meeting of the Western Salt association Wednesday. Election of officers was held, after which the delegates were organized for the future headquarters of the association. No reference was made to a change in the card rate, and very little was said on the pending battle between iron and steel for supremacy. Columbus, Ohio, was decided on as the place for holding the next meeting on the second Monday in May. A banquet followed the adjournment Wednesday evening.

BRUNN'S ULTIMATUM.

THE MUSCOVITE LAYS DOWN SOME PEACE CONDITIONS.

Alexander Arranging To Be Made Emperor of Central Asia—Englishman Leaving Russian Territory—British Press Opinions—Warlike News.

LONDON, April 23.—The Russian reply to the communication sent to M. de Giers through Sir Edward Thornton, Wednesday, after the receipt of Sir Peter Lumsden's supplementary report on the battle of March 30 has just been received. M. de Giers replies curtly that Russia declines to accept any further discussion of the English incident.

A Vienna correspondent says: "Information which has been received here from St. Petersburg political circles creates a great sensation. It is to the effect that the only condition on which peace can be assured is that England shall acknowledge the complete neutrality of Afghanistan and the extinction of English influence on the Asian continent. In this case only, it is said, is a peaceful understanding between England and Russia possible. This demand on the part of Russia has been communicated as an ultimatum to London. The highest military circles in Russia are bringing great pressure to bear on the government to declare war. They say that the chances for victory for Russia were never so favorable as at the present time. Russia, it is further said, is only awaiting the moment when the Volga shall be free of ice, as this river is essential for the transportation of troops. As soon as the river is open Russia will cease further attempts at diplomatic negotiations. It is also said here in diplomatic circles that England is endeavoring to negotiate with the ports about the passage of the Dardanelles for war ships."

The correspondent also mentions an interesting rumor which he says he has heard from various sources, and which he believes to be true. It is to the effect that the czar, Alexander III, has determined to proceed to Samarkand, in Turkestan, there to be crowned "Emperor of Central Asia." The coronation ceremony and the incidental festivities which will last for many days will be on a scale of magnificence calculated to dazzle and captivate the Asiatic khans and chieftains. The formal coronation will take place in the ancient palace of Tamerlane, the famous conqueror who raised Turkestan to the dignity of a first-class Asiatic power in the beginning of the fifteenth century. The date of the imperial progress and pageant is not yet fixed, but is not expected to occur during the present year.

The Standard, in an editorial, says: "England need not fear that a war with Russia will involve them with other powers. If Russia defeated England, an awful moment would arrive for Germany. Therefore, we must confidently assume that Bismarck is not averse to war between England and Russia, because he fears Russia weakened. We may discuss all misgivings that Germany or her allies will oppose England, and France, for well-known reasons, will be a quiet spectator. The sympathy, possibly the indirect assistance, of Italy to England is secured. It will be our own fault if Turkey throws a difficulty in our way. Wise, bold action will secure both Turkey and Persia. The czar must ponder upon these things."

The Times, in an editorial, says the position of the Afghan question remains precisely the same as on the day of the receipt of the news of the battle of Peashook. The only thing clear is the necessity of hurrying the preparation for war and of active diplomacy to secure allies.

The Daily News says there is reason to believe that Russia declines to make further inquiry concerning the Panjshir incident. The News adds that the Russian government has Turkey toward a satisfactory arrangement in the event of war, and that it is reliably reported that England is negotiating with the Italian government for the occupation of a portion of Egypt by Italy.

The News says editorially: "We wish we could encourage the idea that negotiations with Russia are tending toward the preservation of peace, but we fear the reverse. No disposition is shown by Russia to retreat from the false position she has assumed. Forbearance has been pushed to limits, and will bear little further extension on the part of England."

The Standard's Paris dispatch says that the United States regarding England's demand for reparation for the destruction of the Washington government has intimated that in event of war it will not permit Russia to buy or arm ships in American harbors, which may be used for the purpose of ravaging the coast of British commerce.

LLOYD'S Commercial agency advanced its premiums from 5 to 15 shillings. The admiralty have chartered the steamer Richmond Hill, one of the London and New York liners for transport service.

Odesa says: "Leading English merchant houses are closing up their business and arranging with their connections for transfer of their correspondence to other hands preparatory to the members of the firms leaving Russia. Public excitement is increasing. There has been a further fall of Russian securities."

THE FORT PITT PEOPLE SAFE. They Arrive at Batford with Only Two Missing.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 23.—The government has received a telegram from Batford which indicates that the reported massacre at Fort Pitt is a canard. It reads: "The Pitt police, under Dickson, arrived by river at Batford Wednesday morning. One had been killed and one wounded previous to leaving. All the soldiers, under McLean, the Indian agent, have gone into the Indian camp."
